CRIBLINES
pocket ringing books

The Ringing World are pleased to announce the arrival of three new pocket ringing books into the shop.

The two popular Criblines books were produced between 1979 and 2019 by David J Marshall and Alison Popplewell. With David's permission, the Ringing World are now delighted to take on production and distribution of this series.

We've given them a fresh new look, with colour throughout. Every method is given with its blue line, also showing the treble's path in red and half leads and lead ends. The 'grid' is also given, showing every place bell and the place notation, with the pivot bell highlighted.

All three books are in the original A7 size (74 x 105mm). Responding to the feedback we received about our Little Purple Ringing Book being smaller than comfortable for some, we've also produced Criblines: Surprise Minor in a larger format.

Surprise Minor

The 41 regular surprise minor methods, from Cambridge, Beverley and Surfleet to Whitley and Wooler.

Includes a table of method names and diagrams of calls in each method group.

Also available in a large edition (A6, 105 x 148mm, £4)

NEW – Plain Minor

A new addition to the Criblines collection. Contains the 35 regular plain minor methods, including Plain Bob, St Clement's and Double Bob.

A bob and single diagram is given on every method page, and a table of method names by overworks and underworks.

£3 each

Treble Dodging Major

66 surprise, delight and treble bob major methods. A newly revised selection which includes Kent, the Standard Eight, all the methods from Norman Smith's well-known composition of 23-spliced, and many promoted by Simon Linford in 'Project Pickled Egg'.

RingingsForums ... topic specific networks

As mentioned during the CCCBR AGM in September we are pleased to be able to launch RingingsForums, a set of online networks for like-minded ringers to ask specific topic questions, get support and share information quickly and easily. A network could involve, for example, individuals holding similar roles in ringing societies e.g. belfry advisers, safeguarding officers, treasurers, GDPR advisers, society librarians. More broadly, networks could include individuals with specific or more general interests e.g. historians, composers, software developers, health and safety, public relations, recruitment and retention. Others could use information to find answers for one-off enquiries, e.g. on insurance etc. Anyone searching for 'how do I maintain plain bearings', for example, would find relevant information or someone to answer.

The benefits of using RingingsForums includes:

- forum for serious discussion of topics of mutual interest
- mutual help
- sharing best practice
- exchange photos, examples, references, guidelines, templates etc
- information retained for efficient reuse
- avoids / reduces fragmentation of information on multiple fora – Facebook, email lists, other social media)

It costs nothing to access. Using RingingsForums, we can establish separate forums for distinct ringing topics on request, encourage experts to monitor relevant forums and answer questions raised, and provide public or private forums as needed for specialist interest groups or projects. A single login will allow ringers to comment on the forums, and any of the public forums can be browsed without logging in at all.

Some forums have already been set up with others in progress, and some discussion topics already begun. Others are in the process of being set up and we welcome suggestions for useful forums that ringers would want access to.

To view the current forums, read what's already being discussed and to register if you wish to contribute to the discussion, go to <https://www.ringingforums.org/> Be sure to read the RingingsForums Policy and let us know if there's a discussion topic you'd like to see.
